AFRICA DAY 2010

About us

Indo-African Chamber of Commerce and Industries since its inception in 1985 has manifested its success in leaps and bounds. It is a major link for the promotion of trade and commerce between the 2 continents. A gateway to the African countries the chamber provided an active forum to Indian Business community. It has continually played crucial role to ascertain newer business sectors and opportunities to augment trade and investment. A galaxy of Indian business entity associates them with the chamber. In its effort to promote, widen and develop the trade and business relations between India and Africa the chamber has reached every extent of activity. It has also aggressively worked towards strengthening the socio-economic relations and fraternity bond between India and Africa

About Africa Day

On the 25 May, 1963, the leaders of the then independent Africa, made history and gave significant impetus to the continent's collective but then incomplete struggle for independence, by establishing the Organization of the African Unity. Nearly, four decades followed, in which African states stood united in the framework of the OAU, while making efforts to give depth and meaning to their political independence and striving for the socio-economic development of their peoples. Those efforts yielded positive results, culminating in the establishment of the African Union (AU). 25 May is therefore celebrated and commemorated every year as Africa Day.
